They want to vaccinate everybody? - They Lie - Minerva y Athena Swaruu

Swaruu Minerva (11): I came to share something I discovered about vaccines. Something that doesn't add up for me thinking mathematically. I started researching and thinking of numbers about vaccination.

According to what I saw on the internet, the official number of humans on Earth today is: 7 964 545 209. And they want to vaccinate them with at least three doses. Then they would need: 23 893 636 627 (3X 7 964 545 209) little bottles of vaccines, doses.

If they start making a bottle every second, according to my calculations, it would take: 757.6622 years to finish making them. That does not add up.

If there are 3600 seconds in an hour, 86 400 seconds in a day, 31 536 000 seconds in a year, then: 23 893 636 627 / 31 536 000 = 757.6622154680365.

I do not see it possible to manufacture so many bottles in all the factories in the world, not even if they started to manufacture them 10 years ago.

It is known that this number of inhabitants 7 964 545 209 is not true, but even if you calculate everything at 10%, it does not add up.

According to my calculations, vaccinating one person every minute all over the Earth nonstop, it would take 4 545 973 292 years and 9 months to apply all 3 doses to the entire world population. Something here with these numbers smells fishy to me.

But to that you have to add that they can't give a vaccine per minute, and in every place in the world it will be different, and in many places they only work 8 hours a day. And even if there are thousands of places, they will not be able to hold a dose every minute. The average of one dose every minute worldwide must be sustained.

Even if we lower the population numbers and raise the efficiency of the sites, it would still take thousands of years to vaccinate everyone, much less three times. Then there are the vaccine supply delays, all the logistics and transportation. Even with a vaccine replicator, it is not possible.

And then there is the lack of disposable syringes, cotton balls and all that. The numbers are enormous, it exceeds what can be done.

Gosia: They know they will not vaccinate everyone. They are not going after the whole population.

Swaruu Minerva (11): I think so. Only those who allow themselves to be vaccinated. Those who are in the big cities and are obedient.

Gosia: So... What is your suspicion here?

Swaruu Minerva (11): This is my suspicion, what you say. It's that the numbers don't add up. There would have to be brigades going door to door every day and in large numbers to supply that amount of vaccine, if they could be manufactured in those numbers.

It's just that even if I'm getting something ugly wrong with my numbers, you can still tell something is not right with the math of what's possible. They are lying. You can't achieve what they say with what they have.

It's just impossible numbers to imagine. Just for starters, that supports what was said years ago. That there can't be that many humans on Earth. Even if there were 10% of that, 790,000,000, to vaccinate everyone would be a gigantic job.

ANOTHER DAY:

Swaruu X (Athena): You know what? I think the numbers do point to the fact that they would never make it, to vaccinate everyone. Especially not that fast. Mathematically speaking, you can't do it. And that's pretty firm, you don't need precise data from anywhere.

Another thing that the girls say, this time Sophia (Yazhi), is that she sees that about 30% of the world's population doesn't get vaccinated and doesn't follow the narrative, they're just quiet, they don't talk to anybody or only to their families, very passive resistance, and they don't even know that they're resistance. Just because they don't want to get vaccinated, for whatever reason, even just because they didn't do well the previous time they got "vaccinated against influenza".

Gosia: But if they knew that they would not be able to vaccinate everyone, what they achieved is still good for them, because the plan is depopulation but not total extermination.

Swaruu X (Athena): Yes, as we have said in another context, they do not use only one method of depopulation, but the sum of many methods:

- MMR vaccines that attack children,
- Influenza vaccines,
- Vaccines against covid,
- Chemtrails,
- Poisonous substances in food,
- Sodium fluoride everywhere, e.g., monosodium glutamate is another one,
- Pushing bad food,
- Stressing the population with the economy,
- Gay and transgender agenda.

They attack them from all sides and the sum of all those parts is what causes total depopulation.

And now comes war... yet another favorite method they use. Also radiation from WIFI, from mobiles, the list goes on and on.

So it is even possible that they would withdraw the Covid thing, since they have the following agendas already in place, change of narrative again.

As Mari (Minerva) says, they will vaccinate those who allow themselves to be vaccinated, those who are in the western world and under the influence of the mass media, those who live in cities and large communities.

But they will not be able to vaccinate everyone, simply because the logistics of getting into remote rural places around the world are very difficult. It would take literally 3,000 years to vaccinate that many people, and Mari's estimate has already lowered the world population to 10% of what it is officially. If the official estimate were true, it would be much more difficult.

Gosia: I simply believe that it was never their goal to vaccinate everyone. As you said above, they have other agendas in mind.

Swaruu X (Athena): That's right, so does Mari. That they push the narrative of wanting to vaccinate everyone knowing that they can't. So what they want is to get as much benefit as possible, vaccinate as many as possible. The others will be hit economically or with wars.

Good luck with vaccinating everyone. It will not be possible. And they have already calculated that and are moving to the next agenda. Pfizer said that a fourth dose is needed. People are already starting to "smell the rat".

Gosia: They seem to be desperate.

Swaruu X (Athena): That's true, yes, because if the population wakes up they will be lynched.
